Everyday

It's fun to go shopping in Sharm El-Sheikh, and here you will begin with the traditional Old Market. This is a really busy street market where you can find almost all the traditional Egyptian goods, and pass through narrow walking alleys with stalls offering spices, textile goods, souvenirs, and crafts that are made by hand. The feel of the bazaar so much in the enchanting fittings the atmosphere would be in the smells of exotic spices and the cadence of the local vendors gives a true view of life and trade in Egypt.

Then go on to the latest neighborhoods in shopping: Naama Bay and SOHO Square. Naama Bay is well known today for its fully fledged array of shops, cafes, and entertainment venues that create a new shopping experience. SOHO Square in contrast is a chic place with high fashion boutiques, global restaurants, and attractions like the Dancing Fountain and even an ice rink. They are the perfect blend for all high-fashion-individual tastes between leisure and luxury.

Complete this trip with an afternoon at a local café sipping on traditional Egyptian tea or coffee while discussing all the shopping experiences. This kind of tour allows you to have unique artifacts but at the same time allows you to experience the beauty of the culture and the richness of commercial life at Sharm El-Sheikh- a really important induction into your Egyptian journey.
